STATEMENT OF BELIEF

Outreach Israel Ministries and TNN Online

There is One Almighty Creator God of the Universe, who has revealed Himself to us in the manifestations of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

Yeshua the Messiah (Jesus Christ) came in fulfillment of the Messianic prophecies of the Scriptures and is fully God. It is mandatory for us to believe in a Divine Redeemer to be saved. Salvation is a free gift of God to all who receive Messiah Yeshua into their lives and confess of their sins. Those who reject Messiah will be consigned to eternal punishment.

The Holy Scriptures, Genesis-Revelation, are the inspired, infallible Word of God as revealed in the original Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek texts.

There is only one assembly of chosen ones/elect, the congregation of Israel, of which all Believers in Messiah are a part. God does not have two groups of elect: Israel and "the Church."

The Torah (Genesis-Deuteronomy) is the foundation of all Scripture, was followed by our Messiah Yeshua, and is to still be followed and studied by Believers today.

Yeshua the Messiah is coming to gather the saints after the Tribulation period.

OIM is an agapē ministry, freely and benevolently giving the vast majority of its teachings and resources, without charge, to those who desire to be spiritually nourished.

OIM UPDATE

October 2013

Now that the Fall feasts of the Lord have been completed, with the commemoration of the Shemini Atzeret or Eighth Day of the Assembly and the joyful celebration of the Torah (Simchat Torah), most Messianic communities of faith are now settling into the centuries old cyclical study of the weekly Torah, selected Haftarah, and corresponding Apostolic Scriptures readings. For many new to the Messianic understanding, these studies provide an annual review of the foundational building blocks of our faith, providing us insights into the key stories and accounts of Holy Scripture, and how they guided the ministry and teachings of Yeshua the Messiah.

We highly recommend that those interested in growing in their understanding from a Messianic perspective, obtain some of the written materials we have produced over the years to enhance and compliment your individual study. This includes the TorahScope I, II, and III series of commentaries by Mark Huey, which deal specifically with the weekly Torah portions, TorahScope Haftarah Exhortations, and TorahScope Apostolic Scripture Reflections. Another key resource is Torah In the Balance, Volume I (by J.K. McKee), relating to some of the aspects of the Messianic lifestyle, Torah observance, and proper attitude. This year, for your personal or assembly resource library, we would like to make all six volumes in paperback, available for the discounted price of $100, including U.S. shipping and handling.

As you all know, OIM is an educational ministry which addresses a wide array of topics and theological issues, which we know over time will help many people within the broad Messianic community mature in their respective walks with the Lord, and the subjects which constantly face us from the Bible. Over the next year or so, we will be producing two new volumes for our Messianic Helper series, dealing with the issues of kosher and Sabbath. These are obviously relevant, as they deal with decisions that people make every day and every week. They are also two topics for which there has not been a thorough handling of the "mystery," if you will, and for which there remain many unanswered questions and unanalyzed Scripture passages. We will keep you up to date on our progress!

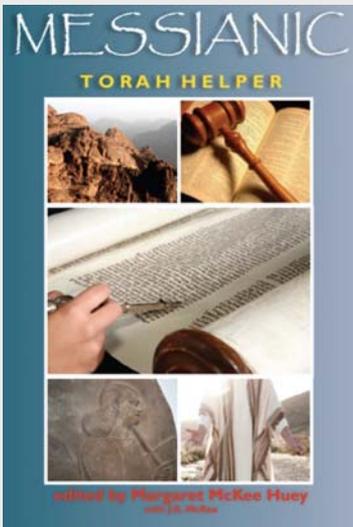

This month, however, we are pleased to provide an excerpt from the book The New Testament Validates Torah, on Galatians 3:24-25. Recently at a local congregational Sukkot celebration here in Texas, John McKee gave a presentation on this passage to those gathered, explaining some of the Greek language issues, theological approaches, and some contemporary application. The leader of the Messianic Jewish assembly we attend was extremely impressed with the detail, but most especially the ease of access and practicality of it. Entitled "Galatians 3:24-25: 'To Messiah' or 'Until Messiah Came'?" will give many of you a snapshot of the level of detail that must begin to manifest itself in Messianic Biblical Studies on an entire host of issues. It should also help you realize how much work there is still to do, and how overloaded our ministry is at present!

Finally, we are extremely grateful for your faithful general support or specific contributions to our Theological Defense Trust and the Prison Ministry—Free Book Outreach. From the enthusiastic feedback we are receiving on both fronts, we know that people are being blessed by the balanced approach we have been led to follow over the years. Thank you, and “The LORD bless you, and keep you; the LORD make His face shine on you, and be gracious to you; the LORD lift up His countenance on you, and give you peace” (Numbers 6:24-26).

Advancing His Kingdom, until the restoration of all things...

MESSIANIC TORAH HELPER

There are many aspects regarding the subject matter of “the Torah” for today’s broad Messianic movement to consider. These range from: the validity of the Torah or Law of Moses, the historicity and reliability of the Torah, the degree of applicability of the Torah to Jewish and non-Jewish people, the role of tradition in following the Torah, and changes affected to the role of the Torah in the post-resurrection era via the sacrifice of Yeshua (Jesus). Some of these aspects surrounding Messianics’ study and appreciation of the Torah are handled quite well by the current generation, and some of them are frequently avoided or handled rather poorly.

The Messianic Torah Helper is a valuable compilation of articles and analyses designed to assist you, your family, and your friends in approaching those important areas of the Torah which need to be considered. How have Jews and Christians approached the Law of Moses in their theology? What are some of the controversies surrounding the Pentateuch? Has the Law been abolished? Are Jewish and non-Jewish Believers in Israel’s Messiah both supposed to keep the same basic Law? Does Jewish tradition play any kind of role in following Moses’ Teaching? Are non-Jews who keep the Torah trying to replace the Jewish people? These questions, and many more, are some of those considered in the Messianic Torah Helper.

If you have ever inquired about a wide range of Torah-related issues, then the Messianic Torah Helper is definitely something for you. This book is an excellent follow up to the extensive study The New Testament Validates Torah by J.K. McKee.

“to Messiah” or “until Messiah came”?

by J.K. McKee

Pastor: Galatians 3:24: The Law is our tutor to lead us to Christ.

“Therefore the Law has become our tutor to lead us to Messiah, so that we may be justified by faith.”

The pastor we are examining is correct when he asserts, “The Law is our tutor to lead us to Christ,” citing Galatians 3:24 as evidence. The challenge with his assertion, though, is not in the need for the Torah’s instruction—and our widespread human inability to keep it—to reveal our sin and point us to the Messiah and the eternal redemption He provides (i.e., Romans 10:4, Grk.). The problem is that (1) when the good news is declared in much of Christianity today, people are only told about the love of God but are often never told about the judgment that is pronounced upon them as sinners, precisely because they are condemned as Torah-breakers (cf. Isaiah 24:5-6). And, (2) it has become far more commonplace in examination of Galatians to read Galatians 3:22-25 from the perspective of it not speaking of individuals on the road to salvation, but instead of it speaking historically of the Jewish people keeping the Torah prior to the arrival of the Messiah—with the Torah only in temporary effect to be obeyed until His arrival. Scot McKnight summarizes the two interpretive options for Galatians 3:24:

“The first takes it in an educative function: ‘the law was our pedagogue to lead us to Christ.’ This view is a common, traditional view, which sees the law as pointing out our sins so we will cry out for God’s grace in Christ. But besides the fact that Paul is not talking here about ‘individual experience’ but rather about ‘salvation history,’ he does not teach in Galatians that this is the purpose of the law...The second view is therefore to be preferred: ‘the law was our pedagogue until Christ.’ This view is not only the majority view today but is also contextually more compatible.”<sup>1</sup>

This material is adapted from
The New Testament Validates Torah

McKnight is correct when he informs us that the majority view held among Galatians commentators is that Galatians 3:24 is to be read from the temporal perspective of the Torah being valid “until Christ came” (RSV/NRSV/ESV).<sup>2</sup> Only by reviewing Galatians 3:22-25 in total can we really evaluate whether an individual’s common experience in coming to faith in Yeshua or the condition of the Jewish people prior to the arrival of Yeshua is most textually compatible. This section of Paul’s letter to the Galatians begins with him informing his audience,

“But the Scripture has shut up everyone under sin, so that the promise by faith in Yeshua the Messiah [or, the faithfulness of Yeshua the Messiah]<sup>3</sup> might be given to those who believe. But before faith came, we were kept in custody under the law, being shut up to the faith which was later to be revealed” (Galatians 3:22-23).

The negative problem that sin has caused has affected “all men” (NASB) or “the whole world” (NIV), ta panta (τὰ πάντα). People committing sin, and rejecting the Creator God and His ways, is by no means an exclusive First Century Jewish problem; it is a universal problem to all humanity (Romans 3:23). F.F. Bruce is correct to conclude, “As Gentiles and Jews are ‘confined under sin’ in v. 22, so Gentiles and Jews alike are ‘confined under law’ [in v. 23].”<sup>4</sup> All people are to be regarded as being “under sin” (hupo hamartian, ὑπὸ ἁμαρτίαν) and “under law” (hupo nomon, ὑπὸ νόμον). The verb to describe this condition is sugkleiō (συγκλείω), “to confine to specific limits, confine, imprison” (BDAG),<sup>5</sup> regarding how “we were confined under the law” (RSV) or “imprisoned and guarded under the law” (NRSV). All that Scripture (the Torah and the Prophets) can do for people is lay out God’s standard of holiness, righteousness, and proper conduct—yet because of the common mortal proclivity to disobey Him—the most that Scripture can really do is lock us up as prisoners.

Scripture, to be sure, is not the problem; sin without a definite solution is the problem. The only thing to be experienced in a condition where one is “under sin” and “under law” is to be jailed, as it were, in condemnation and guilt. Thankfully, Yeshua the Messiah has come on the scene, and via His sacrifice offers everyone freedom from this! But, Yeshua’s work is for “those who believe”; if one does not recognize Him as Lord and Savior, then the redemption He provides is ineffectual and such people remain “under sin” and “under law.”

At this point, though, many interpreters—in spite of how “the scripture has all men ‘imprisoned’ under the power of sin” (Galatians 3:22, Phillips New Testament)—opt for the continuing “we” statement made by Paul to regard only his fellow Jews, and not to all of his audience. So, when Paul says “before faith came, we were kept in custody under the law, being shut up to the faith which was later to be revealed” (Galatians 3:23), such confinement was considered only a Jewish issue. The clause eis tēn mellousan pistin apokalupthēnai (εἰς τὴν μέλλουσαν πίστιν ἀποκαλυφθῆναι), “to the faith about to be revealed” (YLT), is thought to be taken with a temporal force, with the proposition eis (εἰς) to be viewed “to denote a certain point or limit of time” (LS),<sup>6</sup> hence the common rendering “until faith should be revealed” (RSV). The faith in view is undoubtedly the belief or trust to be placed in Yeshua and His redemptive work; being “confined under the law” (RSV), though, is thought to only be a Jewish issue, with the Messiah’s arrival now abolishing Moses’ Teaching.

In order to draw the conclusion that the preposition eis means “until,” a reader has to separate out “under sin” and “under law” as being two different ideas: “under sin” would mean the negative consequences of sin, but “under law” would mean Jews having to be Torah obedient (at least at one prior point in history). However, the symbiotic relationship that being “under sin” and “under law” have together—as being “under sin” results in being “under law” and subjected to the Torah’s penalties—is one which is constant and cannot be so easily separated as some interpreters think. Paul expresses in Romans 6:14-15, to a largely non-Jewish audience in Rome, “For sin shall not be master over you, for you are not under law but under grace. What then? Shall we sin because we are not under law but under grace? May it never be!” Not only is the antithesis of being “under grace” being “under law,” but the “we” referred to would be all born again Believers who have recognized the Messiah Yeshua. All people need to be redeemed from being “under law.”

Alternatively, if Galatians 3:23 is approached from an individualistic perspective, the statement “before faith came, we were kept in custody under the law, being shut up to the faith which was later to be revealed,” regards the status of all people who were once condemned by God’s Torah as sinners, locked up in some kind of condemnation state before salvation. We should agree with Tim Hegg, who says “it seems most natural to understand the phrase ‘before the faith came’<sup>7</sup> to mean ‘before personal faith comes to those God saves.’”<sup>8</sup> Only when people are able to recognize the significance of Yeshua’s faithfulness to die as a permanent sacrifice for human sin, this reality of faith having arrived to them, can they then be shown the great revelation of how faith in the Savior is to significantly transform them and allow them to enter into the Father’s destiny for their lives. This is something that the Apostle Paul did not want his Galatian audience to forget: what it took to get them to truly arrive at the significant faith in the Lord that they possess.

While many would prefer to take the verb apokaluptō (ἀποκαλύπτω) in Galatians 3:23 as regarding God's plan in Yeshua "to be revealed" within salvation history, earlier in his letter Paul himself uses it to describe how "God, who had set me apart even from my mother's womb and called me through His grace, was pleased to reveal [apokaluptō] His Son in me so that I might preach Him among the Gentiles..." (Galatians 1:15-16a). To have the importance of faith actually revealed to a newly saved person, who has just been freed from the guilt incurred by sin and Torah-breaking, is entirely consistent with how Paul himself was redeemed. The initial salvation experience of faith in Yeshua is to be followed with a person being shown even more how significant the Messiah's work is. It is more appropriate to render the clause eis tēn mellousan pistin apokalupthēnai as something like: "to the faith intending<sup>9</sup> to be revealed" (my translation), that which is destined to manifest itself in the redeemed. Paul acknowledges the initial entry of Messiah faith in someone's life, leading to a greater revelation of what faith in Him and who He is encompasses. The preposition eis (εἰς) can notably also mean "to express relation, to or towards" (LS).<sup>10</sup> Paul later specifies how the power of the good news is to lead one from faith to faith, meaning that the significant revelation of faith in Yeshua naturally gets deeper after one has been forgiven of sin and grows in Him:

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation [to salvation, YLT; eis sōtērian, εἰς σωτηρίαν] to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. For in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith to faith [apokalupetai ek pisteōs eis pistin, ἀποκαλύπτεται ἐκ πίστεως εἰς πίστιν] ..." (Romans 1:16-17a).

A proper view of Galatians 3:23 recognizes that: (1) saving faith is to manifest itself in the life of a Believer, (2) because of such faith one is freed from the imprisoning condemnation of sin and being "under law," and (3) this results in being revealed a greater significance of faith as growth in Messiah begins.

Having stated how those who are "under law," locked up as condemned sinners, must have faith in Yeshua come into their lives—and consequently with the redeemed being shown the magnificent importance of such faith in Yeshua—Paul follows this by explaining a pre-Messiah function of the Torah:

"Therefore the Law has become our tutor to lead us to Messiah, so that we may be justified by faith" (Galatians 3:24, NASU).<sup>11</sup>

I have chosen to render the verb mellō (μέλλω) here along the lines of "to be inevitable, be destined, inevitable," which for Galatians 3:23 is specifically noted for "w. aor. inf. ἀποκαλυφθῆναι that is destined (acc. to God's will) to be revealed" (BDAG, 628).

<sup>11</sup> New English Bible (Oxford and Cambridge: Oxford and Cambridge University Presses, 1970), NT p 241 has "the law was a kind of tutor in charge of us until Christ should come," but notes the alternate rendering "Or a kind of tutor to conduct us to Christ."

A majority of today's interpreters take Galatians 3:24 as being a temporal function for Paul's own Jewish people. From this perspective "our" means "Jewish," and "the law was our custodian until Christ came" (RSV) or "the law was our disciplinarian until Christ came" (NRSV). The Torah was the Jewish "imprisoner," so to speak, eis Christon (εἰς Χριστόν). Highly reflective of this view, and one who definitely believes that the Torah is not to be followed in the post-resurrection era, is Ben Witherington III, who concludes that "the Law as the pedagogue of God's people lasted only until Christ came. Here εἰς Χριστόν is surely to be taken in a temporal and not a telic sense."<sup>12</sup> Such an interpretation of Galatians 3:24 could lead one to conclude that Paul is a turncoat Jew, and he is saying that with the arrival of the Messiah that his own people do not have to observe the burden of having to keep any of the Law of Moses; it was, after all, only "until Christ."<sup>13</sup>

Much of how we look at Galatians 3:24 is influenced by how we look at the role of the paidagōgos (παιδαγωγός), which is invariably translated as "tutor" (NASU), "custodian" (RSV/CJB), "child-conductor" (YLT), "guardian" (HCSB), or "schoolmaster" (KJV), comparable to our English word "pedagogue." Many examiners are in rightful agreement that "tutor" is not the best rendering for paidagōgos, as there is something specific to be understood from this term in antiquity. In Galatians 3:24, we actually see Paul using a classical Greek term to express a Jewish concept.<sup>14</sup> The paidagōgos was "Orig. 'boy-leader', the man, usu.[ally] a slave...whose duty it was to conduct a boy or youth...to and from school and to superintend his conduct gener.; he was not a 'teacher'...When the young man became of age, the παιδαγωγός was no longer needed" (BDAG).<sup>15</sup> In a classical sense, the paidagōgos was a protector who was to guard young boys on their way to school until they reached a certain age. This "disciplinarian" (NRSV) or "guardian" (ESV) would try to instill within them a basic sense of who a responsible citizen was, until they arrived at a point when they were old enough to take care of themselves.

Within much of the ancient period, the paidagōgos had a widescale reputation for strictness. Hans Dieter Betz indicates, "The figure of the pedagogue is looked upon as a hard but necessary instrument in bringing a person to achieve and realize virtue."<sup>16</sup> So here, the Torah is not that much more than a merciless taskmas-

<sup>13</sup> Longenecker, Galatians, 149 does notably speak against this, claiming that "One may, of course, as a Jew continue to live a Jewish nomistic lifestyle for cultural, national, or pragmatic reasons. To be a Jewish believer in Jesus did not mean turning one's back on one's own culture or nation," although he unfortunately further argues that things like circumcision or the dietary laws have nothing to do with "the life of faith."

<sup>14</sup> The term "pedagogue" does appear as a borrowed term in some Jewish literature (Ibid., pp 146-148).

ter that has to beat proper behavior into someone. Witherington is more tempered, remarking that this point of view “is much too one-sided. There were both bad and good pedagogues and the latter were not rarer exceptions to a rule.”<sup>17</sup> Paul is certainly not expecting his Galatian audience to apply all of the possible negative traits of a classical paidagōgos into his usage in Galatians 3:24.

While strict in terms of discipline, and while various interpreters would oppose this conclusion, the paidagōgos did have an important educational function. As Plato would describe it, “Our sharp-eyed and efficient supervisor of the education of the young must redirect their natural development along the right lines, by always setting them on the paths of goodness as embodied in the legal code” (Laws 7.809).<sup>18</sup> James D.G. Dunn argues in favor of the paidagōgos, again while being strict, having a “responsibility to instruct in good manners, and to discipline and correct the youth when necessary.”<sup>19</sup> TDNT further remarks that the Torah “is a paedagōgós while we are minors. During our minority we are under it and virtually in the position of slaves. With faith, however, we achieve adult sonship and a new immediacy to the Father which is far better than dependence on even the best ‘pedagogue.’...It is a taskmaster with an educational role.”<sup>20</sup>

The related verb to paidagōgos is paideuō (παιδεύω), which can mean both “to provide instruction for informed and responsible living, educate” and “to assist in the development of a person’s ability to make appropriate choices, practice discipline” (BDAG).<sup>21</sup> Paideuō is often employed in the Septuagint to render the Hebrew yasar (יָסַר), meaning, “chastise, discipline, rebuke,” and “teach, train” (CHALOT).<sup>22</sup> It appears in Proverbs 29:19: “A slave will not be instructed [yasar] by words alone; for though he understands, there will be no response,” or “A stubborn servant will not be reproved [paideuō] by words: for even if he understands, still he will not obey” (LXE). Yet, even while the verb paideuō can relate to negative discipline or chastisement, it is used in the Apocrypha to represent the education of someone in the Tanach Scriptures:

- “Therefore set your desire on my words; long for them, and you will be instructed [paideuō]...Therefore be instructed [paideuō] by my words, and you will profit” (Wisdom 6:11, 25).
- “If you are willing, my son, you will be taught [paideuō], and if you apply yourself you will become clever” (Sirach 6:32).

Another related term to paidagōgos is paideia (παιδεία), regarding “the state of being brought up properly, training” (BDAG).<sup>23</sup> This notably appears in 2 Timothy 3:16, where Paul says “All Scripture is inspired by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for training [paideia] in righteousness.” Also to be considered could be 4 Maccabees 1:17: “[There] is education [paideia] in the law<sup>24</sup>, by which we learn divine matters reverently and human affairs to our advantage.”

Whether Galatians 3:24 should be understood in the context of the clause eis Christon meaning “to lead us to Christ” (NIV) or “until Christ came” (TNIV) is determined by the value judgment of a reader concluding whether or not the figure of the paidagōgos or pedagogue had any kind of educational role. No one can deny that the paidagōgos was a strict disciplinarian. While Witherington argues that “it was not unusual for the pedagogue to chide or even beat a child on occasion to achieve the desired form of behavior,” even he has to recognize “The pedagogue did have a limited educational role...”<sup>25</sup> All are agreed that the Torah function as a pedagogue regards the issuance of condemnation to Torah-breakers, but does this condemnation stir up within condemned persons the need for them to cry out to the Messiah—or did the Torah only have a limited function in protecting the Jewish people until the Messiah’s arrival? The combined disciplinarian-educator can actually be seen when we compare Galatians 3:24 to 2 Timothy 3:14-16:

PAUL TO THE GALATIANS	PAUL TO TIMOTHY
Therefore the Law has become our tutor...to Messiah, so that we may be justified by faith (Galatians 3:24).	You, however, continue in the things you have learned and become convinced of, knowing from whom you have learned them , and that from childhood you have known the sacred writings which are able to give you the wisdom that leads to salvation through faith which is in Messiah Yeshua. All Scripture is inspired by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for training in righteousness (2 Timothy 3:14-16).

The Apostle Paul lauded Timothy for how he was raised by his mother and grandmother (2 Timothy 1:5) in the Tanach Scriptures, which are Holy Texts to be employed for paideian tēn en dikaiosunē (παιδείαν τὴν ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ), “training in righteousness” (2 Timothy 3:16). The Torah and Tanach are going to train people in ways of righteousness, whether they are redeemed or unredeemed, and for the latter such training will undeniably involve chastisement. The Torah, Prophets, and Writings are going to always reveal a person's innate need for a Divine Redeemer—One whom the Father has provided in His Son Yeshua (Jesus). Paul quite keenly says of the Tanach Scriptures, that they are “able to make you wise to salvation through belief in Messiah Yeshua” (my translation), eis sōtērian dia pisteōs tēs en Christō Iēsou (εἰς σωτηρίαν διὰ πίστεως τῆς ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ). In 2 Timothy 3:15, the preposition eis involves Timothy's training in the Tanach leading to his salvation.

There is no reason at all why the clause eis Christon (εἰς Χριστόν) cannot be viewed as “to Christ.” It is true that a version like the NASU has added some words in italics with “the Law has become our tutor to lead us to Christ” and the NKJV has the similar “the law was our tutor to bring us to Christ.” These words are justifiably added to recognize the appropriate preparatory role of the pedagogue: eis Christon, “to Christ”—which is comparable to eis sōtērian, “to salvation.” In Galatians 3:24 the perfect verb gegonen (γέγονεν) is used, indicating that the role of the Torah as pedagogue, while something done in the past, still has an ongoing effect for born again Believers. The Torah having once served a pedagogue for the redeemed—a strict disciplinarian for those who have now arrived at faith in Yeshua—does not allow for people to dispense with its instructions. When Matthew 1:21 informs Bible readers, “Now all this took place to fulfill [gegonen] what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet,” are we expected to throw away and ignore the Messianic prophecies now that they have been fulfilled via the Incarnation of Yeshua? Or are we to understand them in a new light?

There is every reason to recognize the validity of the Torah serving as the pedagogue leading individuals in need of salvation to the Messiah. Yet, even if we were to view Galatians 3:24 from the perspective of the Torah serving as a strict disciplinarian “until Christ,” meaning “until Christ came into our lives,” this should not automatically mean that God's Law gets cast aside as unimportant. The function of the Torah as a pedagogue is over for those who recognize the Messiah, whether you render the clause eis Christon as “until Christ” or “to Christ.” John R.W. Stott's observations are well taken:

“[T]he oppressive work of the law was temporary, [but]...it was ultimately intended not to hurt but to bless. Its purpose was to shut us up in prison until Christ should set us free, or to put us under tutors until Christ should make us sons....Only Christ can deliver us from the prison to which the curse of the law has brought us, because He was made a curse for us. Only Christ can deliver us from the law's harsh discipline, because He makes us sons who obey from love for their Father and are no longer naughty children needing tutors to punish them.”<sup>26</sup>

While some might want to argue against the view that the Torah is to serve as an individual's pedagogue—concluding that the “we” Paul is speaking of in Galatians 3:24 is just “we Jews”—the Torah did indeed play a role in the non-Jewish Galatians' own salvation experience. Paul's visit to Southern Galatia in Acts chs. 13-14 reveals that he certainly taught about Yeshua from the Torah and Prophets to more than just Jews, observing that He provided a forgiveness from sins and freedom that the Torah could not provide (Acts 13:38-39, 43).

In various sectors of today's Messianic movement, Galatians 3:24 has been viewed from the perspective of a young man or young woman being prepared for bar/bat mitzvah.<sup>27</sup> In Judaism, boys and girls are taught the commandments of the Torah from their infancy. The commandments are rigorously instilled in them so that by the time they reach puberty, usually by the age of 12 or 13, one who goes through his or her bar/bat mitzvah recognizes that he is accountable for being a member of the Jewish community. While it is now traditional to hold festivities and parties for bar/bat mitzvah, the First Century historian Josephus recorded, “when I was a child, and about fourteen years of age, I was commended by all for the love I had to learning; on which account the high priests and principal men of the city came then frequently to me together, in order to know my opinion about the accurate understanding of points of the law” (Life 1.9).<sup>28</sup> A major role in a bar/bat mitzvah ceremony (or even in a Protestant Christian denomination confirming a youth as a church member) is so that young people arrive at the point of being aware of their responsibilities before God, and that they have an understanding of the Scriptures.

The practice of preparing a youth for bar/bat mitzvah is to instill in the boy or girl the understanding that he or she is accountable for living up to the Torah's standards. The Torah up to this point serves as the person's tutor or schoolmaster, and hopefully when the youth gets up to the bema to read from the Torah scroll, he or she has an understanding that this is very serious in the eyes of the God of Israel. In a Messianic context, we surely hope that a young person undergoing bar/bat mitzvah has truly come to that moment where he or she realizes that the Torah is not enough, and that it is the Lord Yeshua to which its instructions inevitably point.

In the view of Galatians 3:24, God's Law as pedagogue is to rigorously instill within us a sense of His holiness and righteousness, but our innate inability to ultimately keep its commandments perfectly should lead us to faith in the Messiah. When salvation from our sin comes, the key principles of God's Torah are to certainly remain instilled with us. As we then grow and mature in such salvation, with the New Covenant promise of the Torah being supernaturally transcribed on our hearts now in play (Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27), we can fulfill the Torah in emulation of Messiah Yeshua (Matthew 5:17-19), surely demonstrating it in action via good works of mercy and kindness toward others.

Pastor: Galatians 3:25: Now that faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor.

“But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor.”

While the pastor has chosen to look at the role of the Torah as preparatory for the Messiah, “to lead us to Christ” (Galatians 3:24, NASU), which is quite admirable given the scope of positions against it—he draws the further conclusion from Galatians 3:25, “Now that faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor.” Much of how we approach the meaning of hupo paidagōgon (ὑπὸ παιδαγωγόν) or “under a tutor” regards how we conclude what a paidagōgos actually is. The thought of many is that this means no longer being “under the supervision of the law” (NIV), and that God’s people should not be concerned about keeping God’s Law. Is this a valid approach to Galatians 3:25?

In the previous remarks on Galatians 3:24, we have described how the ancient classical figure of the paidagōgos is like a strict disciplinarian. While having an educational role for those on the road to saving faith, the paidagōgos is still going to condemn a person more often than not. Paul’s word “But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a pedagogue” (Galatians 3:25, my translation), should be understood from the perspective that after a person has arrived at salvation in the Messiah Yeshua, the Torah’s function as a paidagōgos is over. Bruce ably comments, “with the coming of faith believers have come of age and no longer require to be under the control of a slave-attendant: ὑπὸ παιδαγωγόν has the same sense as ὑπὸ νόμον in v. 23.”<sup>29</sup> A fulfillment of the Torah in acts of love, focused around the fruit of the Spirit, is clearly to begin (Galatians 5:14-6:2). For the redeemed, the function of God’s Torah only condemning people with guilt because of their disobedience has ended.

In what context are born again Believers no longer “under a tutor”? If we are in the faith and have reached a point of spiritual maturity where we know what the Torah tells us is right and wrong, and we have repented of our sins and been spiritually regenerated, we have no need for the Torah to serve as a paidagōgos. We have no need for this kind of rigorous training, because if we have experienced the new birth we naturally want to obey our Heavenly Father through the empowerment of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit will convict us and remind us as we study the Scriptures, as we pray, and as we sincerely seek the Lord about what we should and should not be doing. For those truly saved and earnestly seeking the Lord, the Torah no longer serves as a schoolmaster, because we should be naturally following God’s commandments as an outward part of our walk of faith.

The Jewish philosopher Philo also expressed how “there is an undying law set up and established in the nature of the universe...that instruction is a salutary and saving thing, but that ignorance is the cause of disease and destruction” (On Drunkenness 141).<sup>30</sup> The goal of any kind of instruction given by God is to be salvation, especially as human beings understand their limitations in light of His eternal holiness and perfection. And while it is most imperative for our mortal inability to fully obey the Lord to drive us to the cross of Yeshua in confession and repentance, instruction in sanctification is to truly follow being saved as the Holy Spirit takes up residence within us and transforms us to be more like Him. Some of this involves further discipline (1 Corinthians 11:32; Hebrews 12:6; cf. Proverbs 3:12) when we err, but it also involves opportunities for God’s people to simply demonstrate His good character to others (1 Thessalonians 2:10).

In order for the Law to have actually once functioned as an individual’s tutor or pedagogue: people have to know it. Where in mainstream Christianity today are the commandments of the Torah really taught to even lead people to faith? Are God’s commandments being taught in Sunday school so that the youth can know that they are sinners and that they need a Redeemer? Surely if they were in greater numbers than they currently are, some of the moral dilemmas that the contemporary Church faces would not be present. Unfortunately, the “salvation history” reading of Galatians 3:22-25 has done much of the current generation a serious disservice: Christian people are really not being instructed in the Law of Moses. The role that the Torah plays, or has played, in seeing Yeshua arrive onto the scene of history and into the lives of the redeemed—is not that appreciated. Hegg offers us some key observations:

“[I]n the metaphor Paul uses, when one has arrived at the teacher, one does not therefore despise the pedagogue who lead him there! If anything, one is more appreciative of the custodian because he has performed his duties faithfully. In the same way, when a sinner comes to realize that he is unable to remedy himself of his guilt, and when the Torah leads the sinner to Yeshua, the only remedy for sin, he is forever grateful for the role of the Torah in leading to Yeshua. Far from considering the Torah to have been worthless, he recognizes the strategic role it has played.”<sup>31</sup>

Indeed, as redeemed Believers are no longer “under a tutor,” we should nonetheless be most grateful that the Torah-function as pedagogue has led us to the Divine Savior, Yeshua the Messiah. Following our salvation, we should demonstrate the appropriate respect, honor, and obedience that is due Moses’ Teaching.<sup>32</sup>

WINTER HOLIDAY HELPER

HELPER

The Winter holiday season is frequently a conflicted time of year for many people in today's Messianic movement. On the one hand, most Messianic Believers do not celebrate the holiday of Christmas on December 25, due to some of its pre-Christian origins and questionable traditions. On the other hand, the birth of Yeshua the Messiah (Jesus Christ) is a Biblical event which we all must acknowledge in some way. Furthermore, during this same Winter season, the Jewish community commemorates the Festival of Dedication or Chanukah. What is a Messianic Believer to do?

The Messianic Winter Holiday Helper is a valuable compilation of resources designed to assist you, your family, and your Messianic fellowship for this season. We have included a selection of articles summarizing the holiday of Christmas, and how Messianic Believers need to have a proper attitude toward our Christian brothers and sisters. We have included a variety of teachings on Chanukah, common traditions associated with it, and how this can be a blessed time of spiritually rededicating ourselves to God and to each other. Information on the time period of the Maccabees in Second Century B.C.E. Judea, the wars that they fought, and the long term impact they left on subsequent generations, has been provided. A few FAQs on the Winter holidays are offered, as are some delicious recipes, and liturgy you can recite for your Chanukah celebration.

Do not let the Winter holiday season be a difficult time for you any more. The Messianic Winter Holiday Helper can assist you greatly in making this a very special time for you and your family!

TNN ONLINE EDITOR'S UPDATE

October 2013

Dear Friends:

This month marks an important transition in some of the projects that have been taking place at TNN Press since November 2011. Almost two years ago, while still in Central Florida, our ministry began a long term task to see that all our book titles were converted into eBook and paperback format. During that time, we saw all current titles appropriately updated, fine-tuned, and processed. Following our relocation back to North Texas, we began a process of finishing up various half- or three-quarters finished titles, which is now widely completed with the release of the Messianic Torah Helper and Confronting Critical Issues (soon). I certainly feel a sense of both relief and accomplishment with all of this, but am also quite aware of the fact of how there are many more things which need to be critically addressed.

At the moment, we are now in the second month of an anticipated year-long examination of the letter to the Romans. I am doing my best to stay ahead of the study in terms of my preparations, and do strongly believe that this will be one of the most important Practical Messianic commentaries we release when completed. Along with this, over the next year or so we will be focusing our attention on the Messianic Kosher Helper and Messianic Sabbath Helper volumes. These are two volumes which we have been hoping and praying to release for many years, but have had to wait on due to external discussions needing to advance. A good part of my day right now is reading up on these topics, formulating notes, coordinating writing assignments, and seeing that a thorough but reasonable treatment is given. It is always interesting to see that as these projects are conducted, whatever other ideas you are prompted to formulate, which are able to serve the needs of fellow Believers.

Since 2010, I have firmly thought that this second decade of the Twenty-First Century would be a major one of transition and soul searching for the Messianic faith community. This view gets steadily confirmed day by day. While there continues to be growth in numbers, there is a definite need for there to be a growth in theology, spirituality, and a deeper level of maturity and commitment to the Lord. Many issues have been avoided, which are coming to the surface. Perhaps every generation of God's people are presented with various challenges and tests. And so, as we will soon be about one-third complete with the 2010s, how much legitimate progress has been made for the purposes of His Kingdom, and with what He intends to accomplish through us?

Until next month...
